

Two Felons Stage Break From 'Skyscraper Jail'

MIAMI, Fla.—(INS)—A nation-wide hunt was pressed today for a nine-year-old Homestead, Fla., girl. Mackiewicz and Picott, using a rope braided from mattress covers, clambered down the outside of the skyscraper jail to the 17th floor where they kicked in a window of the fugitives, Norman J. Mackiewicz, 32, accused of slaying a Bal Harbor, Fla., policeman, and Howard Bartlett, 40, a known sexual offender charged with the rape of

Eisenhower Urges Safety On Highways

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—President Eisenhower appealed for organized citizen support today to help overcome "the terrible march of death . . . on our public roads."

"Action is the answer . . . Cooperation is the means," Eisenhower said in a filmed keynote message to the first of four citizen leadership conferences of the President's Committee for Traffic Safety.

A recent study, the President stated, showed that as an average the 48 states had applied only 38 per cent of their basic traffic safety programs.

"If this record is to be improved, every state, county and local official with responsibility for traffic control must have organized citizen support," he said.

Other conferences will be held in Chicago, April 1-2; San Francisco, April 8-9; and Miami Beach, Fla., May 29-30.

States represented at the two-day Eastern regional conference are Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Eisenhower

Robert E. Merriam, assistant budget director, told Congress the budget deficit for the year ending June 30 may run as much as 500 million dollars higher than Eisenhower forecast in January, largely due to heavier spending to combat the recession.

Secretary of Defense McElroy announced also he will ask at least $1,300,000,000 more than Eisenhower's original $38,100,000,000 budget request for military spending next year.

Nixon said he expects gains in both business and employment in the near future, but added that if the recession continues, he prefers to "go down the tax-cutting road rather than the spending road" to cure it.

His comment apparently surprised Senators Knowland (Calif.), the Senate Republican leader, and Bridges (N.H.), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Knowland said he regards a tax reduction as "one of the alternatives that should be considered if by summer there is no upturn."

Bridges said in a separate interview he is keeping an open mind on the question.

"A tax cut would be one way to approach the situation but I am not committed to one at this time," he said.

Trade Pacts Get Push At Stag Dinner

WASHINGTON—The Eisenhower administration is considering a big new push for the reciprocal trade program whose future is in doubt because of mounting congressional opposition.

The White House held a businessmen's stag dinner last night to plug for the program and press Secretary James Hagerty said new moves are on tap.

An alternative for the reciprocal trade agreement acts that would give Congress a greater voice in trade control was advanced by Rep. Dorn (D-SC).

Dorn introduced what he called "compromise legislation" that would shelve the multilateral trade principle of the reciprocal program in favor of bilateral pacts. Thus, instead of covering several countries, the agreement would be set up on a nation-by-nation basis.

Pentagon Plans To Hike Ike's Military Budget

WASHINGTON—The Pentagon intends to ask Congress to increase President Eisenhower's $39,100,000,000 military budget for 1958-59 by approximately 1½ billion dollars.

Secretary of Defense McElroy told newsmen, "I don't say that it is going to be more than 1½ billion but it will be at least as large as the supplemental for the current year."

Congress recently authorized a $1,300,000,000 supplemental appropriation for the Defense Department for the year ending June 30.

McElroy, returning from a nine-day trip in the West, indicated the Joint Chiefs of Staff have completed a study calling for priority projects that will need more money than was recommended in the President's budget.

He added he would be surprised if the extra funds will not include orders for more B52 strategic bombers.

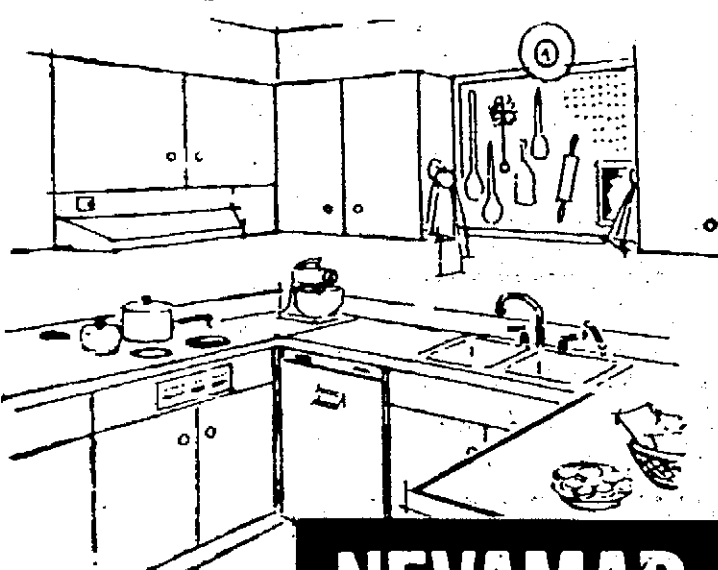

McElroy didn't spell out how the extra money would be spent. He has said previously that if

Discussion Set

WASHINGTON—AFL-CIO President George Meany said today President Eisenhower will receive him and other labor union leaders Thursday for a discussion of the economic situation.

In Louisiana many of the old French laws of pioneer days are still in force and a considerable part of the population still speaks French as much as they do English.

Court Move To Save Slayer Delayed

CHARLESTON (AP)—The hearing by the State Supreme Court of petitions intended to save condemned killer James Lee Burkhamer has been postponed until April 22 after being originally scheduled for today.

The 24-year-old Burkhamer was sentenced to death after pleading guilty to the strangulation slaying of Charlete Vilain, 11, in Clarksburg last May.

The postponement was proposed by the Attorney General's office, which reported that it had not had sufficient time to investigate the facts and records of the case.

Maryland's state park personnel opened a three-day training meeting here last night with a dinner at Minke's Cottage Inn.

Both Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks, and State Forester H. C. Buckingham will speak to the group. R.E.L. Putman and George B. Hale, both maintenance engineers for the State Roads Commission, will discuss road maintenance problems.

Today, the approximately 35 attending the meeting will be taken on a tour of Shawnee Park at nearby Schellsburg, Pa.

Time Will Decide

MANY AMERICANS will be amazed to realize that a generation has passed since Franklin D. Roosevelt became president in the depths of the Great Depression and launched the nation into the hectic era of the New Deal. As historians measure time, 25 years is, of course, not very long. But already some of them have dared to struggle through the mountainous record of the Roosevelt period in search of patterns of truth. These histories and biographies cannot be the definitive ones. Too many parts of the story are still to be unfolded in the private papers of men still living. Yet these preliminary insights make a useful background for what is to come.

THE NEW DEAL was really a two-phase affair which lasted about six years, roughly half of Mr. Roosevelt's total tenure in office. One phase concerned itself with recovery from the Depression. It included the famous National Recovery Administration, under which industries adopted codes of performance designed to stimulate fuller economic activity. Unemployment relief, easy credit to business, farmers, homeowners and others, and a broad public works program were other features. If the volume of unemployment had been taken as an index of recovery, then this part of the New Deal was never wholly successful. For in 1939, on the eve of World War II and our defense program, we still had 10 million unemployed, as against a peak of 16 million in the worst of the depression. The other phase of the New Deal focussed on longrange social legislation—social security, unemployment compensation, protection of citizens' bank deposits, aids to housing, permanent credit and mortgage organizations, and the like.

AMERICAN businessmen reserved their stiffest opposition for these elements of FDR's program. Yet most of them weathered the assault, and today are largely accepted by both major parties as an enduring part of the nation's economic and social system. Congress swung sharply toward conservatism after the 1938 elections. The barriers proved insurmountable to Mr. Roosevelt. At that point the New Deal as an expanding and developing program came to an abrupt and final halt. Some say the social changes it produced were long overdue. Some have argued that industry might have kept federal hands off many fields had it alertly assumed burdens Washington took on in that era. Whatever the fact, the New Deal as a collection of welfare measures lives on. Historians generations from now will decide whether Franklin D. Roosevelt's stature as its architect was or was not greatly lessened by the fact that he could not at the time construct a full economic recovery.

Odd Traffic Theory

A SOMEWHAT astonishing statement on traffic safety was offered the other day by the president of the Automobile Club of New York, William Gottlieb. He said that most motorists drive as safely as conditions permit, and that the real complaint should be against "bad roads, bad laws and bad theories." Unquestionably he is concerned as earnestly as all of us with promoting safety. The consensus among the traffic experts, however, is that the human factor bulks very large in the accidental fatality picture. It would be interesting to hear what evidence Gottlieb offers in support of this notion. He hasn't much company right now.

Odd Politics

CARIBBEAN politics must forever remain a thing of mystery. Cuban rebels who briefly kidnapped Argentine race driver Juan Manuel Fangio said they hoped it would force cancellation of the country's Gran Premio race and thus embarrass President Batista. It's somewhat as if, in 1956, Adlai Stevenson had tried to hide Mickey Mantle at his place in Libertyville during the World Series in the hope of putting the crusher on President Eisenhower. Watch the Cuban news closely. Any day you may read that Batista has been toppled because the rebels made off with Cuba's leading symphony conductor and the president couldn't face the political embarrassment of an empty podium.

Who's Out Of Work?

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith

Solon Lauds Courage Of Thomas L. Stokes

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of the "Statesmen's Series," columns by distinguished persons in government, business, national affairs and the military who will write guest columns for Thomas L. Stokes who is seriously ill.

WASHINGTON — It is a pleasure to pinch-hit for Tom Stokes, a truly great newspaperman and one of the outstanding columnists of our time. I wish him a speedy recovery, for I miss his column and his observations very much. Actually, writing this guest column is like coming back home journalistically, as for five and a half years I wrote a daily column distributed by United Feature Syndicate. I belonged to the same organization as Tom Stokes and I enjoyed it even though it was hard work.

Courage and conviction are not commodities as rare as they are sometimes represented. I have seen them displayed by members of the press on more than a few occasions. That's why I feel it is a signal honor for me to come to bat for Tom Stokes while he is incapacitated but certainly aware of the esteem in which we hold him.

IT SEEMS to me that too often only the deceased receive the profiles-in-courage award. Perhaps that is because it takes time to evaluate the man and his act or acts of courage. Perhaps it is because it is less controversial to evaluate a man after he dies than while he is living. Even many of the enemies or critics are mellowed in their attitude toward a man after he dies. They have less resistance to his being given credit as long as he is no longer around.

But why not have profiles-in-courage awards to the living? Surely, it makes more sense to give such awards to a man while he is living to encourage him to keep up his behavior of courage.

Several publishers have asked me to write an autobiography. Thus far I have declined. I would much rather write a book such as "Living Profiles In Courage," for I think it would serve a far better purpose and would be much better reading.

I AM NOT SURE as to whom I would include in such a book, however. I think I would include former President Herbert Hoover, who came back from a humiliating defeat and repudiation by the electorate in the 1932 election to become a much greater man as an elder statesman than as a President. It would have been only human for him to retire in bitterness after 1932. But he had the courage to rise above that bitterness and to give magnificent service to his country and his fellow Americans in heading up the Hoover Commissions.

I think I would include former President Harry S. Truman, the man who refused to be licked in 1948 when practically everyone had written him off for overwhelming defeat. Here is a fighter who speaks his mind — and whose courage and frankness you must admire even if you don't agree with what he says.

It might have been reasonably expected when he retired from the Presidency in 1953 that he would gradually be forgotten by the public. But not so, for this year in the Gallup Poll he is rated as the second most-admired man in the world by Americans.

And, interestingly enough, Harry S. Truman says he doesn't believe in polls.

I THINK I would include Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson, who is probably the No. 1 political target today, for his courage in facing the heavy and continuous onslaught heaped upon him. He has refused to be frightened into resignation. But yet, it would take considerable courage for him to resign under fire if he believed that was the right thing for him to do for his country, the farmers, his President and his party. For he would do so in the face of misinterpretation of his true reason for resigning.

I think I also would include Lyndon Johnson, Majority Leader of the Senate, who came back from a severe heart attack that almost took his life. To most men this would have meant the end of a public office career.

It was even more significant in Senator Johnson's case because of the constantly tremendous pressure in the work of the Senate Majority Leader, who literally runs the Senate.

WHEN LYNDON Johnson was told to spare himself and take it easy, his answer was: "I would rather burn out than rust out." Today Lyndon Johnson is the most energetic and active member of the Senate in spite of the fact that he is a heart patient.

There are others, of course, whom I would include but space does not permit listing them here. If you have any nominees for "Living Profiles In Courage" I would appreciate your sending a letter to me at 325 Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C. (United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Varying Rules For Regulatory Agencies

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Federal regulatory agencies have widely varying rules on unethical conduct by members of Congress or other citizens seeking to influence cases pending before these supposedly independent, quasi-judicial bodies. This was clearly revealed in a survey of the agencies made by NEA Service.

Some commissions have no rules at all on these matters. Federal Communications Commission is in this class.

This explains in some measure why it may have been possible for five U.S. senators to bring "improper, back door influence on FCC" in a Miami TV channel case, as charged by National Airlines President G. T. Baker.

The senators named were Kefauver, Monroney, Magnuson, Smathers and Holland, all Democrats. The charge against them is being looked into by the House Committee on Legislative Oversight, now headed by Rep. Oren Harris.

FCC DOES HAVE a Code of Ethics to govern its own employees. But the only restraint on members of Congress who may seek to influence an FCC decision is that any letter from a congressman to a member of the commission is made a part of the official record on an application for a license or in any other proceeding.

Federal Power Commission has an elaborate set of Rules of Practice, adopted in 1942. They are precise in what may be submitted to the commission in its rate and licensing cases. They make up the bulk of FPC business under the Natural Gas and Federal Power acts it administers. Members of Congress may appear before the Federal Power Commission or its hearing examiners and testify in open session on a pending case. They thus become practically attorneys or witnesses for projects in which their districts and their constituents have a special interest.

Letters from congressmen to FPC members on pending cases are placed in the commission's open files and may be examined by the public. But there is no requirement that these letters be made a part of the case record considered by the commission before it makes its decision.

TARIFF commission likewise, the NEA survey disclosed, has no rules on congressional practice. TC does not even operate under the Administrative Procedures Act, which governs other agencies. This is largely because it operates without formal "trial" hearings.

The tradition has been built up that the Tariff Commission is an arm of Congress, doing what Congress itself doesn't have time to do. Also, the Tariff Commission has no licenses to grant, no final decisions to make. It files reports which go to the President for final action.

National Labor Relations Board has no rules governing outside influences on its deliberations. Only two cases are recalled in which this might have been a factor.

Looking Backward

CREDIT BUREAU ELECTS—The Cumberland Credit Bureau, Inc., yesterday elected Edward J. Dawson, president; James Beacham, vice president and Virgil C. Powell, secretary-treasurer.

VOLUNTEER PAY CUT—The Allegany County Teachers' Association adopted a resolution to accept a voluntary salary reduction of ten per cent for a period of two years. Officials said the teachers realized the necessity of reducing taxation, if possible, and believe that temporary salary reductions of teachers and other public officials as one way of arriving at a lower tax rate.

REFUSES SUPPORT—The Roosevelt economy bill hit a stormy road in the House today with Democratic ranks on the loose for and against it. In caucus, the Democrats fell short by 14 votes of binding their great majority to support the President.

Glancing Sideways

NEW YORK—There has been a lot printed editorially and otherwise about how little or how much we as a nation are spending to exhibit at the Brussels World Fair, beginning April 17th, but no one seems to have paid much attention to a man who went out and financed an exhibition all his own.

His name is Nicolas Reisini, and he turns out to be a sort of bustling celluloid diplomat. He has rights in a corporation which has overseas rights to "Cine-rama" and has decided to build the world's first all-aluminum theatre to house the filmings at the fair.

THE THEATRE will run to about $300,000, but Reisini hopes to get a goodly percentage of the estimated 35,000,000 who will attend the Fair. I talked to him in New York the other day and he had it all tied down in a neat sentence: "We hope our Cine-rama curtain will replace the Iron curtain."

Had he any special type of audiences in mind, since this was not an American-sponsored exhibit under State Department auspices?

"No, we are open to anyone," he said, "but I already have sold 200,000 tickets. In advance."

To whom?

"I sold them to the Vatican for the use of priests visiting the Fair."

What about his theatre when the Fair ended?

"It's portable," he said. "I can pack it up and move on to another city. In time, I think these aluminum, sectional theatres will be seen in many places. Nor is it exactly the world's first all-aluminum theatre. Henry Kaiser built two igloo-shaped jobs, one each in Honolulu and Houston. Mine is rectangular, as a standard theatre, with a sloped roof. It holds 1,200 persons and in Brussels, with winter weather, we had it up in 9,000 manhours."

YOU CAN READ a lot of nonsense about New York luncheon habits and how expensive, extensive lunches are the rule. You can put that down among the other silly, untrue and manifestly impossible New York legends.

The average businessman doesn't dare load himself to the scuppers, or the Plimsoll Line, with several courses. I talked to Danny at Danny's Hideaway about it, as well as to Marc Reuben at Absinthe House (and nine other bonifaces if you want to know) and they testify that a single item, plus one cup of black coffee, is the pattern.

"Dames go for big lunches with a sweet dessert at the end," one confessed, "but dames have an out. They usually are going shopping for the afternoon and can walk it off. A man is chained to his desk, where he'd fall asleep, as logy as a winter bear. I notice that on Wednesdays, matinee days, dames eat light. They don't want to fall asleep in the theatre." There you have it.

EVERY TIME I reorganize my thinking and decide that we are growing up as a people and are showing signs of being real bright folks, along comes a new song to send me back to the troglodyte school of thought all over again.

The present depressant is something about a little blue man who sobs "I wuv you" every time a girl singer walks by. It ends with a tear in the little blue man's eye as he says wistfully: "I don't wuv you any more." Bro-o-o-6-ther!

WHERE DO actors come from? Any place, as can be proved by dozens of cases. Here is Ray Walston, now a star who was in "Damn Yankees" and is now appearing in the brand new "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" as a very funny star. He's a New Orleans product who did his theatre break-in in Houston and Dallas, but before that Ray was a linotype operator for the New York newspaper for which I work.

The movies are loaded with young leading men who were truck drivers — Dana Andrews, Rock Hudson, et al.—but the theatre has the only ex-linotype operator. Still has his union card in Big Six, what's more. An actor, even a star, never knows when he might have to sit down and set a stick or two of type to earn his keep.

HAVING slippage trouble these days? The new, and somewhat startling, sole for shoes is an inch thick and has serrated edges cut into it. A man told me you couldn't slip if you tried.

I didn't believe him, so he put a pair on me and took me over to Rockefeller Center and put me out on the ice of the rink. I couldn't slip if I tried, and I tried. But I still wouldn't wear them to a black tie occasion. It's like walking on blades.

The Fun's Gone Out Of Life

WASHINGTON — Lately I've had some complaints from customers who want me to move back to the country and start writing funny pieces again about my troubles with the machinery.

They don't know what they're asking.

Fact is, there seems to be a close alliance between comedy and tragedy. What sounded hilarious sometimes in print usually had my poor bride in tears. Either that, or me in splits.

ONLY FUNNY tale that ever came from our beaten-up acres in McLean, Va., that didn't involve sorrow for somebody probably was Mrs. O's adventure into dynamiting holes in the ground for the planting of her dwarf apple trees.

Even so, this almost gave the sheriff heart failure when he heard about it, and the big boom—there were 20 of them, one for each hole—had the neighbors wondering about atom bombs.

AS THE YEARS went by on our hilltop, we gradually eliminated our troubles. The pump stopped blowing up. We got the tractor tamed. We even found a gasoline-powered lawnmower that worked most of the time.

I eventually learned I didn't really have to use Hilda's sun lamp every morning to thaw the water pipes in the barn so the horse could get a drink. There were such things as frost-proof faucets. These first were produced in 1896 and had been available ever since: the trouble was, I didn't know.

WE FOUND a plumber who knew the intricacies of our water system and an expert who finally managed to stop the leak in the roof. By the time we moved into town last fall, the funny stories from McLean had stopped, because after 10 years of suffering we finally had the place under control.

Then we rented the establishment to a young man, his wife and their three children. That's when the funny stories almost backfired. Our tenant had been reading them these many years and he wasn't sure he cared to lease a place where there seldom was a calm moment.

I explained to him that my bride and I had undergone all the anguish, the tears and the expense, that everything about the establishment at long last was in perfect condition, and that any trouble from then on would result from ordinary wear and tear. He took my word and signed the lease.

IT PLEASES me to report that, insofar as I know, he's had no problems. This means that life is so calm in McLean these days that even if I were to move back, there'd be no news worth reporting.

I had hoped, perversely, that there'd be some troubles worthy of writing about in our cooperative apartment in town. It has not turned out that way.

The 273 owners of the Potomac Plaza get along fine; they're even beginning to bake pies for each other. Hilda flooded the folks downstairs when the dishwasher got stuck and gushed out too much water, but a little paint repaired the damage.

TWO OF THE owners did complain about our doorman de luxe, who stands six feet tall, is placed with gold braid, and whose main job is to help the proprietors struggle out of the 1938 model taxicabs. The protestors said they believed his salary was an unnecessary expense. They said they felt strong enough to open their own doors.

The rest of us divided his salary by 273 and decided that our doorman was well worth the small price; he made us feel like nabobs when he bowed us in, and for 85 cents a month each where could we get a better bargain?

Now spring is coming and the shrubs out front are beginning to bud. I don't have to prune them, spray them, or even pray over them. The relief is indescribable.

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON—When the Army announced that Explorer II had probably burned up over the ocean, many interesting theories as to what had become of our would-be satellite were dissolved at the same time. Some of these theories were of vast scientific interest, although even I thought that one—namely that it had landed at Elizabeth Arden's Arizona beauty ranch and become stuck in a mud pack—was rather farfetched.

I may admit, however, that I gave more than passing consideration to a theory that it had either been shot down by an unfriendly submarine or a kid practicing amateur rocketry. I paid virtually no heed to a suggestion advanced by several hoary old police reporters that it had joined Justice Joseph P. Crater.

Another theory which seemed untenable, was that the rocket launchers had forgotten to put in the satellite. They tell me things like that are very carefully checked at Cape Canaveral, and that any one who forgot to put the satellite in the rocket would be severely criticized.

UNTIL THE ARMY made its reluctant admission about the probable fate of our latest Jupiter C, I contemplated doing a learned treatise on what had become of the satellite. I intended to ask what has become of the first Miss America, the above named Justice Crater who walked out permanently on an investigation of New York City corruption on August 6, 1930, and Joe Smith who tried to wrest the GOP nomination from Ike in San Francisco in 1956.

The Army's announcement of the probable fate of Explorer II saved many of us here in Washington from wallowing in mystification. We had been given to understand that if the attempted orbiting was successful it would be announced by the National Academy of Science.

Why this was to be so baffled many of our most searching minds. But now we don't have to concern ourselves with it any longer.

THE PRESS conferences of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles draw attendance second only to those of President Eisenhower. But the Dulles affairs are not so rigidly restricted to working members of the press. This, however, is not the fault of Mr. Dulles. He tries his best to keep the sessions simple pure, if one may employ such an expression, but he is constantly being undone by his own subordinates. The thing has become a cycle and turns like this:

The State Department has many employees who yearn to attend the news conference for either of two reasons, or possibly both: (1) they want to hear at first hand what is going on; (2) they are curious to behold their boss in the flesh. There are State Departmenters, even in the higher echelons, who otherwise wouldn't see the Secretary of State from one year to the next.

THEY TAKE to sliding into the news conferences, rumpling their hair and slouching in the hope they will be taken for newspapermen. They make the auditorium so crowded many representatives of the press can't get in.

Mr. Dulles complains about this, telling his press staff he wants more reporters and fewer State Departmenters. An order goes out. The State Departmenters stay away for a couple of press conferences, then slide back.

The Secretary complains again, and the Dulles minions skip a couple of sessions, before stealing back again. The cycle keeps cycling for after all, in the State Department, the Secretary is a big wheel.

W. Va. Centennial Group To Meet

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia's Centennial Commission, planning an observance of the state's 100th birthday in 1963, will hold its next meeting here March 20.

Among other things, the commission will hear proposals from professional representatives regarding the type of observance the state might set up. The commission chairman is Charles W. Beckley, newspaper publisher.

Man's Story To Cops Seems Very Unlikely

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — When a 20-year-old man was found hiding behind the bar in a locked tavern, he explained: "I'm supposed to clean up the place." But the persons he told this to were a man and wife hired for that very purpose. A District Court judge put him on probation for three years.

U. S. Officials To Visit W. Va. Industry Sites

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia plans to invite federal representatives to the state April 23 to inspect limestone strata areas which might be developed into sites for underground defense plants.

Gov. Underwood pointed up the industrial potential of the limestone excavations in several counties at a recent news conference. He, together with other state representatives, since has discussed the matter generally with U. S. government and industrial leaders. Director Don Cristlip of the State Industrial and Publicity Commission said tentative plans call for the visitors to gather in Morgantown for breakfast on April 23.

They will go by chartered bus to the so-called Greer site, about six miles east of Morgantown, and then to the Manheim excavations near Rowlesburg in Preston County.

Cristlip said those two areas from which great quantities of limestone have been removed were chosen for the tour because they are easily accessible and will illustrate exactly what the state hopes can be done in industrial development.

Plans call for the visitors to go to Blackwater Falls State Park in Tucker County for a luncheon and a briefing by State Geologist Paul Price of Morgantown.

To be invited for the tour are chairmen of House and Senate Armed Services committees, delegations from the U. S. Defense and Commerce departments, West Virginia's congressional delegation and others.

Cristlip said officials of the Monongahela Power Co. would assist in the tour, which also tentatively calls for visits on April 24 by Defense Department representatives to other limestone areas around Elkins and into Monroe and Pendleton counties.

The Great Missile Debate—1

Johnson As Space Chief Faces Wide Array Of Proposals For Future Acts

How best should the U. S. proceed into the space age? That's the subject of a scientific debate under way now—with the outcome of importance to every American. Following is the first of four articles which tell what the debate is all about and describe the dramatic possibilities—and dangers—that may lie ahead in the next few years.

By DARRELL GARWOOD
INS Atomic Science Editor

Roy Johnson has taken over the Pentagon's new job as space czar amid a bewildering array of proposals that raise a question whether he will go all out for the conquest of space or accept more conservative advice.

The energetic head of the Advanced Research Project Agency (ARPA) has before him proposals that, if carried out successfully, would place in space within the next few years manned U. S. satellites weighing as much as ten tons—three times the weight of a high-powered automobile.

But the former General Electric Co. executive also is confronted by top-level advice from the office of missile director William N. Holladay that the U. S. should not and possibly could not launch any satellites weighing more than 300 pounds in the years immediately ahead.

The choices between these extremes are not easy. In the all-out direction lies the possibility of national embarrassment and a great expenditure of money on grandiose projects that would show no immediate results.

In the opposite direction lies the more acute danger that the Russians will score heavily again as they did with the Sputniks by adopting a bolder plan for getting into space.

The Russians would be certain to increase their leadership if only the most conservative proposals are adopted. For the march toward interplanetary travel depends largely on the weight that can be lifted above the earth and the Soviets already have in orbit Sputnik II weighing 1,120 pounds.

A search for a more promising course between the extremes so far has centered on the proposals of Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, chief of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Agency at Ingleside, Calif.

Schriever contends that the Air Force's present 1,500-mile Thor missile, with the second stage of the Navy's Vanguard and a third stage added, could create a 1,300-pound satellite as early as next October.

He said the 5,500-mile intercontinental Atlas, used as the first stage of a satellite assembly, could establish in orbit a man-made moon weighing as much as 4,000 pounds—two tons. The youthful Air Force research leader also has testified that:

"By adding existing second- and third-stage hardware to our present Thor missile, this vehicle can perform unmanned reconnaissance of the moon at a relatively early date"—presumably within a year or two.

"A slightly modified Thor plus a high-energy fuel stage which we have been developing can make possible initial unmanned reconnaissance of Mars and Venus."

"The Titan (Intercontinental Ballistic Missile) booster when developed (about 1960), plus high-energy second and third stages, could put much greater weights into orbit and could provide extended manned satellite missions."

"The Titan vehicle could provide manned flights around the moon and back to earth... We can provide at the earliest date and at the greatest economy not only reconnaissance of the moon, but also a basic vehicle for manned space flight."

Schriever called for "bold decisions and calculated risk" in the type of space program known to have strong congressional backing, including the support of Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson (D) Texas.

The question is still wide open, however, since Johnson has been in office only a few weeks and with one exception, no new U. S. space projects have been authorized in the five months since the first Sputnik soared into the sky last October 4.

The exception was the Army's rapid assembly and firing of the modified Jupiter C rocket to create the 30.8 pound Explorer satellite, which, even though much smaller than the Sputniks,

Jobless Men Start Mines

WHITESBURG, Ky. (AP) — Miners faced with unemployment from coal mine closings have started small mines of their own in Kentucky, and now account for about half the state's coal production.

Kentucky has about 2,600 small mines, averaging about nine miners each. Six hundred were licensed in the past year and the truck mining industry is still expanding. Charles Richards of Middlesboro, secretary of the year-old Kentucky Truck Coal Operators Assn., reported.

Eleven Will Get 'Free Vote Ride'

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Eleven candidates, including Republican gubernatorial hopeful James P. S. Devereux, began a free ride today toward Maryland's May 20 primaries for statewide and congressional offices.

They remained unchallenged for their respective nominations as the deadline for the filing of candidates eased by at midnight last night.

Eleven other aspirants made it into the second-floor Statehouse office of James P. Brock, assistant to the secretary of state, in time to become last-day filers for nomination.

The biggest surprise of these was Bruce Campbell, Baltimore County contractor, who plunked down his check for $200 and entered the Democratic primary for governor.

Campbell for months had complained that J. Millard Tawes, the party's "harmony" candidate for the nomination, was too old at 67 to carry the Democratic standard against the Republicans in November.

Unable to come up with an acceptable, more youthful opponent for Tawes, Campbell, 64, decided to take the plunge himself, winding up as one of six aspirants to the Democratic nomination.

Besides Campbell and Tawes, they include two other last-day filers, attorney Morgan L. Amato and businessman Joseph A. Phillips, both of Baltimore. H.C. Byrd, former University of Maryland president who was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee in 1954, and John H. Reed, former Baltimore City councilman, had filed earlier.

The Democratic race for governor also drew another official entry when William F. Fadler Jr., Silver Spring lawyer who had announced earlier, submitted his filing papers, making it a seven-way race.

The others are Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore, Tawes' general election.

"I believe the rural people and the Democratic party should be represented on the Board of County Commissioners and I believe I am qualified to represent both groups," Mason said.

He asked for voter support in the Democratic primary and in the general election in November.

He is married to the former Miss Harriet Nelson and they have five children, all at home. This is Mason's first attempt at public office although he jokingly recalls having received 17 write-in votes for state's attorney in the 1954 general election.

running mate; George P. Mahoney, Baltimore County paving contractor making his third try for that office; Andrew J. Easter, Baltimore draftsman taking his second shot at the job; Clarence D. Long, Johns Hopkins University economics professor, and Alden A. Potter, segregationist and dairy farmer who listed his address as Washington, D. C.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, the Republican incumbent, drew no new opposition on the last day. He is opposed for renomination by Henry J. Laque, Jr., Anne Arundel County junk dealer who ran unsuccessfully for the senatorial nomination two years ago.

Besides Devereux, major candidates who had filed earlier and escaped without primary opposition include:

Mayor John A. Derr of Frederick, Republican candidate for comptroller.

Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert, Democrat, for renomination.

Rep. Edward T. Miller, Republican, and Democrat Thomas F. Johnson of Berlin, both in the first congressional district.

Republican Harry Kemper and Democrat Rep. Edward A. Gar-matz, both in the all-Baltimore Third Congressional District.

Rep. George H. Fallon, Democrat, in the all-Baltimore Third Congressional District.

Rep. Dewitt S. Hyde, Republican, in the Sixth Congressional District.

Daniel B. Brewster, young Baltimore County Democrat serving in the House of Delegates, was unopposed for nomination in the Second Congressional District until shortly before the deadline.

When Baltimore contractor Peter Aiello filed.

Others who came in just under the wire were Sidney London of Baltimore who entered the Democratic primary for comptroller against State Sen. Louis L. Goldstein (D-Calvert) and Joseph L. Manning, Baltimore grocery association executive; Robert A. Wallace, of Burtonsville and C. Maurice Weidemeyer of Annapolis, who became the only candidates for Republican nomination for comptroller; Louis W. Collier of Pikesville, who became the third candidate in the Republican congressional district primary, and Miss Elizabeth P. Brown, retired postmistress who entered the Republican Seventh District race.

C. WILLIAM H. BAER

Mueller, Baer Seek GOP House Of Delegates Bid

A resident of Kifer in Election District 33, Walter E. Mueller Sr., has filed as a Republican candidate for House of Delegates, subject to the primary election May 20.

A native of La Crosse, Wis., Mueller came to Maryland in the fall of 1910 as the first horticulturist on the 30,000-acre orchard development of F. Mer-tens' Sons Green Ridge Orchards in the eastern part of Allegany County.

His first public job was as a road supervisor for the old Allegany County Board of Road Directors. He supervised the roads from Kifer to Little Orleans.

This will mark his second venture in politics. The last time the office of Allegany County road director was up for election, Mr. Mueller ran on the Republican ticket. He failed by 33 votes, although carrying Cumberland.

Mr. Mueller is credited with starting the movement for a bridge at Paw Paw and he stayed with it until the bridge was built. After the bridge was open he was instrumental in having rural free delivery extended to every resident in the nearby area on the Maryland side of the river.

Like other small communities before the extension of high lines and rural electrification, Paw Paw had only kerosene street lamps and only three stores and homes had electric plants. The town council gave Mr. Mueller the first electric franchise and he brought electricity to Paw Paw.

The candidate for the House of Delegates also was a pioneer in introducing the farm tractor to this section.

Mr. Mueller is married to the former Olive Mae Shumaker of Wardsville, W. Va. They have 12 children, all of whom were graduated from Oldtown High School. At the 1956 graduation exercises, when the youngest child received a diploma, the school and PTA gave public recognition to Mr. and Mrs. Mueller for their leadership and home influence. He served as president of the Oldtown PTA two years.

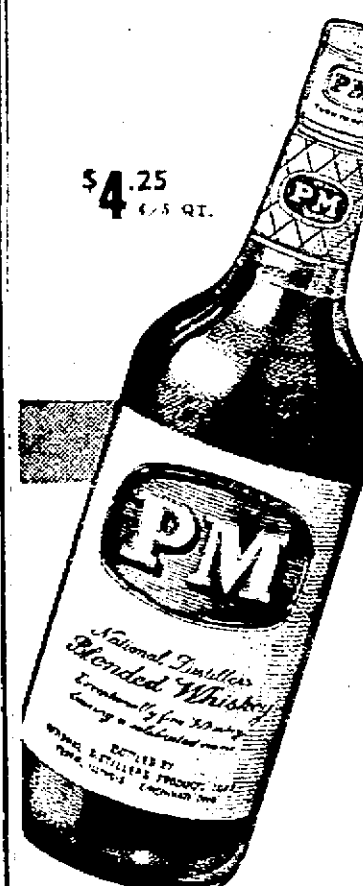

The Kifer man has operated a theatre in Paw Paw for a good many years. It also was used for community events and combined church services. For many years he also has shown movies in public and parochial schools and at churches. He also has served as chairman of the Paw Paw March of Dimes.

Mueller is superintendent of the Sunday School at Sulphur Springs Methodist Church.

He is a graduate in agriculture of the University of Wisconsin.

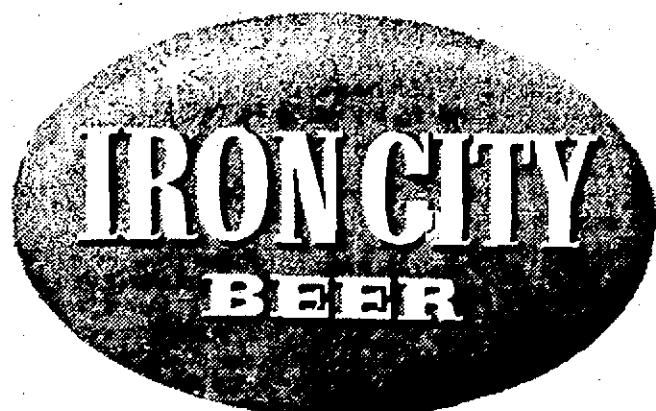

Movie theaters in Great Britain decreased by 226 to a total of 4,171 during 1957.

Interest Lags
In Election
At Frostburg

FROSTBURG—With the closing date for filing as candidates in the city election only six days away, little interest has been shown by the citizens as to who will govern Frostburg for the next two years.

To date, the only persons filing for municipal offices are Mayor
Joseph James and the incumbent council, William Preston,
William Sluss, Herbert Loar and James Evans, and one newcomer to city politics, Kenneth Lowery.

The city government at present employs a total of 34 persons, 11 in the Police Department, 14 in the Water Department, six in the Street Department and three at City Hall. With a population of nearly 7,000 persons, this represents approximately one half of one per cent of citizens who operate the city as full time employees.

According to the taxable basis for June, 1957, Frostburg is valued at $8,430,095, with a tax rate of $1.10 per $100. Total assets of the city are at $973, 606.30. In other words, city officials act as a board of directors and administer a million dollar business annually.

Each year the Mayor and Council prepare a city budget, and for many years have operated within this budget, providing citizens with an adequate water supply, police and fire protection, trash and garbage collection, snow removal and general repairs to the streets. Main sources of money, besides real and personal property taxes, include state shared taxes, licenses and permits, fines and public services.

Grant Memorial Hospital
Assured Supply Of Blood

PETERSBURG—Local authorities have been notified that an adequate blood supply will be available and assured when the new Grant Memorial Hospital begins operation.

Richard Thompson, county Red Cross blood program chairman, was advised by Dr. Raymond O.
Dart, director of the Washington Regional Blood Center, that while the Grant County chapter can not be considered a full participant in the regional blood program until July, blood for the hospital until that time will be guaranteed.

In order for Grant County to continue to receive Red Cross blood, it will be necessary for its citizens to fill the set quota of blood donors when the bloodmobile unit comes into the county; supply the necessary volunteer workers for its operation, and fully support the current Red Cross fund drive.

Dr. Dart will be the guest speaker at the Friday evening
Petersburg Kiwanis Club meeting. The club has invited every organization in the community to send representatives to its dinner meeting in order to hear Dr.
Dart explain the workings of the regional blood program, and how the county organization will participate in the program.

School Registration To Be Held Next Week

On March 20 and 21 the registration of children who will enter public school next fall will be held.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday that the hours for registration on the two days will be from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

A complete canvass of each district is being urged by Mr. Webster, who is asking that the principals attempt to enroll 100 per cent of the pre-school children who will enter school in September.

Webster said children whose sixth birthday falls on December 131, 1958, or earlier, are eligible for enrollment in September.

Notations should be made on the principal's copy to indicate if the age of the child is verified by a birth certificate when the child is registered, and if not, a birth certificate must be presented to the child's teacher at school in September.

Enrollment forms are being forwarded to the school principals who are being asked to return them to Homer S. Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel, in duplicate on or before Friday, April 4.

Six Hospitals Accredited By National Unit

Six area hospitals have been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

They include Sacred Heart Hospital and Memorial Hospital here, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, Bedford County Memorial Hospital, Preston Memorial Hospital of Kingwood, and Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown.

There are approximately 7,000 hospitals eligible for accreditation but Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, Commission director, pointed out that the omission of a hospital from the list did not necessarily mean it had failed to pass an accreditation survey. The accreditation program is a voluntary one, and only those hospitals which request surveys are visited.

Therefore, some hospitals not listed may not have requested surveys. Hospitals with fewer than 25 beds are, with rare exceptions, not eligible for accreditation.

Magazine Has Article On Local Farmer

The current issue of the Farm Journal, a national magazine, has an article on the fruit and truck crops produced by Theodore Stegmaier, Christie Road.

William H. Hardy, an associate editor, points out in his story that last year Stegmaier grew 20,000 baskets of tomatoes, 6,000 bushels of peaches, 10,000 bushels of apples, 50,000 quarts of strawberries, plus several acres of lettuce, cabbage and other truck crops for the fresh market.

The biggest advantage of farming the top of the mountains instead of the valleys, says Stegmaier, is that many times his fields get rain while a drought continues in the flatlands below.

Stegmaier thinks his biggest problem is marketing. He makes certain to take care of nearby markets first. This cuts down transportation cost, and nearby dealers appreciate field-fresh produce.

Maintaining one of the few commercial produce growing farms in Western Maryland, Stegmaier farms mountainsides so steep that most of his neighbors won't even consider a kitchen garden—let alone working a truck farm.

Mother Carrying Tot Leaps To Death On 'L' Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Holding her 4-year-old son in her arms, a Brooklyn housewife plunged into the path of an elevated train yesterday.

The mother was killed. The boy slipped between the ties of the track and hung by a leg, head down, 60 feet above the street for five minutes before being rescued.

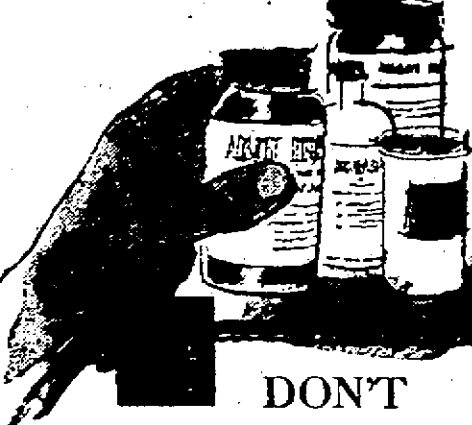

Two cars passed over the boy but he was not seriously injured. He was pulled to safety by a motorman and a transit patrolman and taken to a hospital.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Marie Vitucci, 30, killed herself apparently on impulse.

The father, Michael, part-owner of a gas station, had gone to New Jersey in the morning on a car-buying trip.

Mrs. Vitucci left a note for their two older children saying she was going shopping with the young Michael and would be back later in the afternoon.

A brother-in-law, Benjamin Vitucci, 42, disputed the police statement that she had leaped in front of the train. He said she had no history of mental illness, and had been in good spirits.

Reward For Finding Money 'Small'

CLARKSBURG — The owner of a small fortune in bills found in an old bag at the city bus station is getting them back and the finder is receiving a reward he called "small."

Corlus Hurst, 29, the head of a family of three, discovered $14,150 in fives, tens and twenties in a suitcase that had been lying around the station where he was employed.

This happened in early January. He reported his find to the police and the money was placed in a safe deposit box.

About a month later Ralph Rosenberg of Asbury Park, N.J., wrote to Clarksburg that he had lost the bag in Washington, D.C., while en route by bus to Florida, where he intended to buy a home.

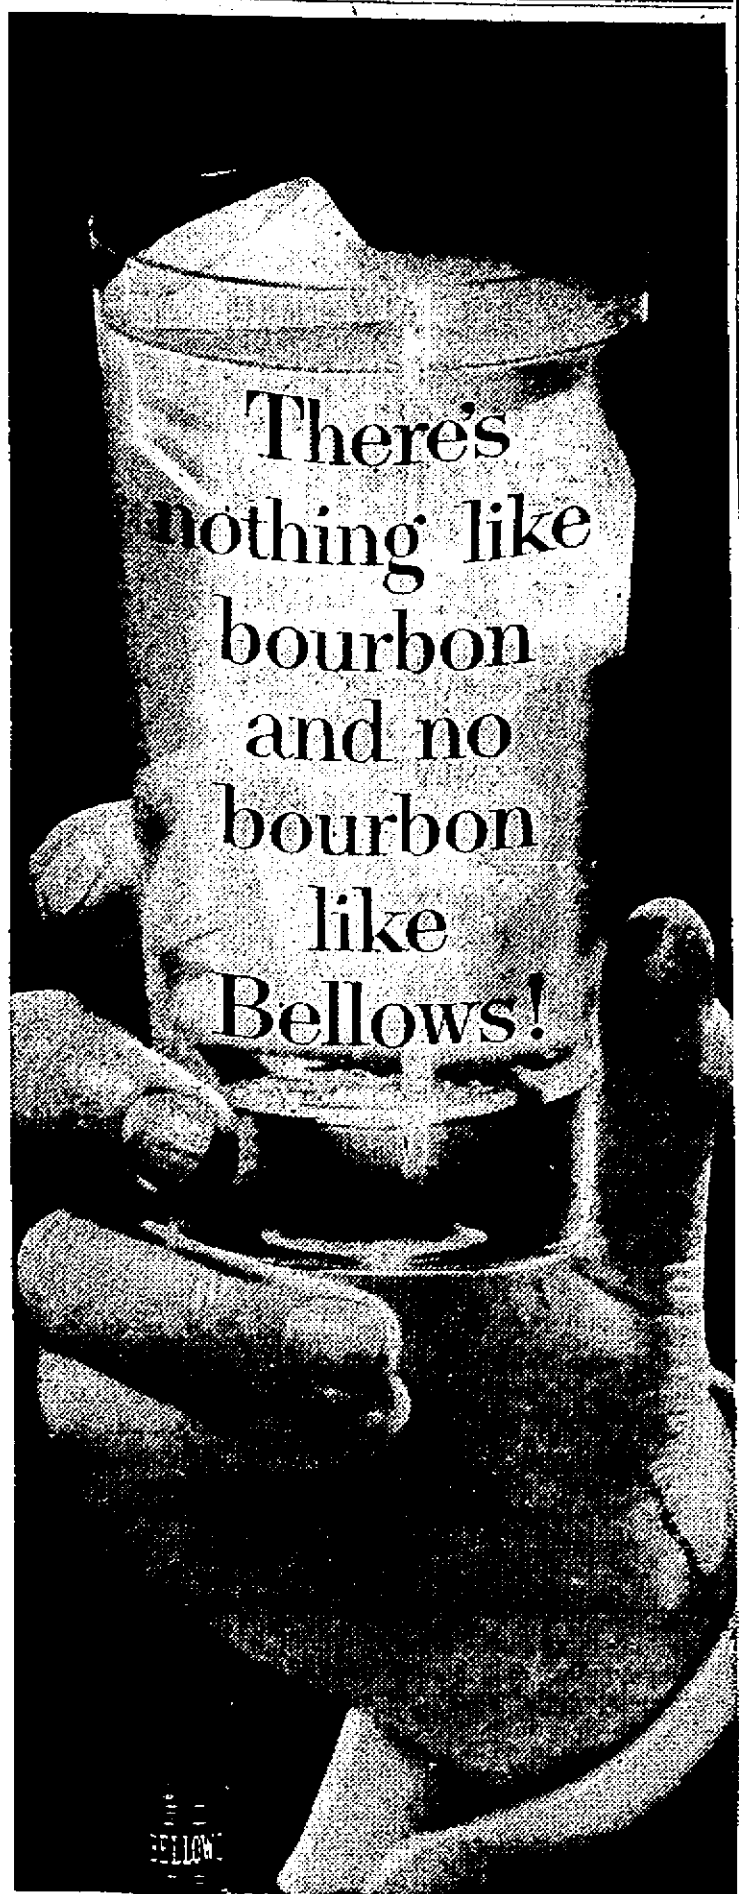

An exchange of letters established that Rosenberg, retired and in his seventies, was the rightful owner. No explanation was ever arrived at for the detour of the bag from the capital to this city. Hurst's attorney said last night that a check will be sent to Rosenberg this week. Hurst himself said he was getting a reward, described it as small, but declined to give the amount. He expressed no bitterness.

Tawes Help Goal In Tax Deadlock

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — "Where's Tawes?"

The question from embattled Democrats grew louder today as the Maryland Legislature remained in an unprecedented deadlock over a Republican governor's tax program.

Democratic leaders of the Assembly seemed to feel their party's leading candidate for governor might do something to break it if he'd step out openly and say something.

They felt it so strongly they placed a telephone call to the candidate, Comptroller J. Millard Tawes after the House of Delegates last night voted down for a sixth time Gov. McKeldin's plan to boost the sales and income taxes 50 per cent each.

Going To Annapolis
Tawes said he would be in Annapolis today to "look over the land."

He told newsmen he feels "the time has come now when some action has got to be taken."

The legislators got no firm agreement from him that he would step in and try to break a General Assembly deadlock which has existed since last Thursday midnight, when by the calendar and most interpretations of the Constitution it should have ended.

Tawes has let it be known privately that he favors the governor's program as a sound fiscal step and reportedly has sought to influence some votes for it. But he has remained in the background anxious to avoid any public identification with what the Legislature finally does.

Today the Assembly was in its 35th day of a 30-day session, still seven votes shy of passing a program that most, but not quite enough, delegates seemed to favor.

And even when and if it gets through a hard-battling anti-sales tax force in the House, it faces another bitter scrap in the Senate, although it might be decided quicker there.

D'Alessandro Paged
Mayor Thomas D'Alessandro of Baltimore, a candidate for U. S. Senate on Tawes' "harmony ticket," also was being paged to throw his weight into the fight.

A majority of the Baltimore City delegation has been sitting quietly and pushing red buttons against any and all tax plans that came before the House to fill the 33 million dollar revenue gap in Gov. McKeldin's budget.

Gov. McKeldin, making an effort to swing some Republican votes and those of any Democrats he could influence to his program, also agreed as a practical politician that it was time for Tawes to take a stand on the issue.

"I would think it would be helpful," said McKeldin when he was asked his opinion by reporters after the fifth straight failure for his program.

McKeldin still refused to order the Legislature into a special overtime session to work out of its constitutional dilemma, but he said his office would continue doing "everything we can" today to help.

Special Session Seen
The governor is believed ready to order the special session once the Legislature has quit its work in order to insure that any bills passed since last Thursday will be constitutional.

He has worked out some plans but refuses to talk about them until the Legislature is ready to finally adjourn.

There was no indication whether that would be today, tomorrow or next week.

Last night's battle over the sales tax question was almost a repeat performance of Friday night when it also came within seven votes of passing the House.

The Legislature went in session late. The Ways and Means Committee brought out the governor's tax plan for a sixth vote, and it was beaten 55-61, needing 62 votes for passage.

Beat Down Sales Tax
Basically the same combination of Eastern Shore Democrats, Baltimore City Democrats and Western Maryland Republicans — all rigidly opposed to any increase in the sales tax beat it down again.

Only four delegates switched their votes from no to yes and six switched from yes to no. A number who had not voted on the last ballot went to one side or the other and some who did vote previously didn't vote this time.

Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) directed a special but fruitless plea to Eastern Shore delegates to join the nine members of their delegation who switched to the plan Friday.

He cited figures showing five Eastern Shore counties with holdouts had turned in increased sales (Continued on Page 18)

Five Seeking County Board Nominations

Democrats Also To Have Contest In Race For Sheriff

The Democratic party has its largest number of candidates for a county primary election in years with last-minute filing of several persons yesterday.

There will be five men vying for the nomination for Allegany County Board of Commissioners. Filing yesterday were John Tucker Alston, Cresaptown, and John J. Rowan, LaVale. Previously, the candidacies of James P. Russell, Mt. Savage; William J. Brode, Clarysville and Francis J. Duckworth, Corriganville, were listed.

Democratic candidates for House of Delegates will be William Walsh, Thomas F. Conlon Jr., Graydon S. Dunlap and George A. Boch, all of Cumberland, and Edward Patrick Flanagan, Frostburg.

Howard P. Loughrey, city, and Clarence C. Myers, Winchester Road, will seek the nomination for sheriff in the May 20 primary.

Candidates for the Democratic County Committee will be Thomas B. Finan, John R. Kelly, C. William McDermott, and F. Allan Weatherholt, all of Frostburg; Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg, and William P. Kelley and Alex E. Patton, both of Lonaconing.

Candidates for delegates to the Democratic state convention will be Julius E. Schindler, Leslie Clark, Edward B. Welsh, William C. Walsh, William L. Wilson, Anne Barley Everstine, F. Patrick Allender. All of them are residents of Cumberland, except Clark, who lives in LaVale.

Rowan retired as superintendent of electricians and the electrical department at Armelle Plant, of Celanese Corporation in January after 34 years of service.

Interested In Library
He said today that he believes, if elected, the taxpayers of Allegany County will gain from his professional experience whenever engineering problems or projects arise.

He added he is interested in securing a county library which would extend facilities to those communities not having them.

Interested in politics, but not an office seeker before this, Rowan said he has worked energetically in community enterprises that were for the benefit of the majority.

Rowan was born at Piedmont, the son of Thomas and Mary (Tierney) Rowan. He was educated at St. Peter's School, Westernport. He enlisted in Cumberland in the Army Air Corps in World War I and six weeks later was in France with the 96th Aero Squadron.

After World War I service, he was employed by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at its Tyrone, Pa., plant. Later he transferred to the Luke plant as an electrician. He began his service with Amcelle Plant in 1924.

Headed Elks Lodge
He is a past exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge 63, BPO Elks; past president of the LaSalle High School parent-teacher association; a member of Cumberland Council 586, Knights of Columbus and St. Patrick's Catholic Church and of the Engineer's Club of Cumberland.

He is a past president of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association. He was one of the original backers of the move to obtain an adequate water supply for the fastest growing legislative district in the county. This drive resulted in the founding of the LaVale Sanitary Commission.

He later followed up with the movement by being one of the key members of the civic improvement association that succeeded in getting legislation for a zoning law for LaVale.

He is chairman of the LaVale Zoning Board which within the month will have the new zoning ordinance enacted, after seven months of concentrated planning for the district.

Rowan is married to the former Ruth Cox of Tyrone. They have three sons, John T. Rowan, Cincinnati district manager for Kelly-Springfield Tire Company; Richard Rowan, city chief dispatcher for the Celanese Trucking Corporation, and Rev. Theodore Rowan, assistant pastor of Our Lady of Victory Church, Baltimore.

Five Seek Demo Congress Bid; Hyde Unopposed
A five-way race for the Democratic nomination for the Sixth District Congress seat held by Rep. Dewitt S. Hyde shaped up today.

Hyde is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

The five Democratic candidates who had filed before the midnight deadline yesterday are John R. Foley, Kensington; David A. Heller, Silver Spring; James H. Mann, Poolesville; Richard Henry Speidel, Chevy Chase; and Edward D. Storm, Frederick.

Foley was the Democratic candidate in 1956.

The primary is May 20.

Board Asked To Take "Bolt-Loosening" Tour

In an open letter to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, a resident on Fir Tree Lane in the Cresaptown section is critical of the lack of repairs to the roadway.

J. O. Bishop states that a number of requests for repairs to the road have gone unheeded and a petition signed by a majority of persons who live or own property along the roadway have had little or no action in bettering the condition of the road.

Bishop states the road in wet weather is a quagmire and in dry weather the road is reduced to dust which billows in clouds which cover the exterior of homes, cars and landscaping.

He also states that "chuck holes" in the road are ever present, which adds unnecessary wear and tear on cars which have to use the road. Bishop said a practical solution to the problem would be to blacktop the road. He admits that some property owners have refused to grant rights of way to the county. This prevents any action in this regard.

In any event, Bishop states,

Work Starts On Building In Frostburg

The building that will house the Frostburg office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company is expected to be completed by the end of July, Robert Garner, Cumberland exchange manager, said at ground breaking ceremonies in Frostburg yesterday.

Ground was broken yesterday by U. S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall for the one-story brick structure of colonial design on Main Street.

Garner said after the George Construction Company completes the building in July the phone company will begin installation of dial equipment.

This is to be completed by November 22 and the utility hopes to cut the office from manual to dial by the end of the year.

Garner noted telephones in Frostburg as of January 1 numbered about 3,000. This is more than twice the total 12 years ago.

In 1940, only 23 per cent of Frostburg families had telephone service, while today 56 per cent have phones in their homes, Garner said.

The building will house only automatic equipment and Cumberland will be the toll center for the Frostburg office, Garner noted.

The "new" exchange will be Overbrook 9.

Youth Held In Shooting

A 16-year-old Franklin, W. Va. youth is being held in the Pendleton County Jail for the shotgun slaying of his step-father.

Authorities in Franklin said this morning that the youth, Robert Lee Bennett, was apprehended after slaying his step-father, Donald, Mick, Saturday near Rivermont, W. Va.

Police said the youth stated that he thought his step-father was going to kill him and he fired the shotgun in self defense.

Authorities said practically all of the shot from the blast struck Mick in the abdomen. He died enroute to a Harrisonburg, Va., hospital.

Bennett told police he had struck his step-father earlier Saturday with a horse collar for "bothering" his sister. He stated that he thought Mick had a gun or knife concealed and he shot.

Dr. Zimmermann Said "Satisfactory"

Dr. C. C. Zimmermann, 941 Braddock Road, is reported in "satisfactory" condition at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

Dr. Zimmermann underwent an "extensive" operation last Friday night at the institution.

Three GOP Candidates Without Foes

Getty, Bodin, Bishop Unopposed; Fifteen In Delegate Contest

Three Republicans who have filed for county offices have no opposition within their own party or from the Democrats.

They are James S. Getty, state's attorney; Joseph E. Bodin, clerk of Circuit Court and James W. Bishop, county treasurer.

A large number of candidates are seeking the GOP nomination for the House of Delegates with the last-minute filing by several persons yesterday prior to the midnight deadline.

Many House Candidates
House candidates are Fred B. Driscoll, John M. Robb, Thomas N. Berry, C. William H. Baer and Estel C. Kelley, all of Cumberland; Irvin Alexander, Robert Lee Jeffery, both of Lonaconing; Noel Speir Cook, Jonathan Sleeman, both of Frostburg; Jack I. Mullen, Westernport; Harry T. Warnick, Gilmore; Harold D. Brooks, LaVale; Walter E. Mueller, Kifer, David J. Williams, Midland; and Calvin Lee Barnett, LaVale.

Running for sheriff on the GOP ticket will be Edward R. Muir and William E. Orr Jr., both of Midland.

Orphans Court judge candidates are William C. Abbott, James G. Hadley and James O. Marshall, all of Lonaconing; Hugh Stevenson, Ellerslie and J. French Van Meter, Cresaptown.

Board Race Heavy
A big field is seeking the GOP nomination for county commissioner. They are W. A. Strother, Glenn K. Davis, James Orr, Arthur Lee Marple, all of Cumberland; Louis V. Shinnamon, LaVale; Charles N. Hill, Frostburg; William A. Wilson and Harold L. Drow, both of Midland; Robert C. Hoberg, and Simeon W. Green, both of Frostburg; Okey E. Michael, Westernport and John J. Smith, Mt. Savage.

Membership on the Republican County Committee is sought by Jerry G. Clise, Midland; Leonard D. Miller, Shaft; J. Irvin Martin, Barton; Thomas Elias, Frostburg; Melvin S. Sloan, Lonaconing; Ernest B. Treat, Victor M. Hebb, Edgar M. Lewis, William Bantz, Tommy Williams, Edward Evans Jr., Harry E. Shobe and Woodrow W. Gurley, all of Cumberland; and J. Kenneth Morgan, LaVale.

In announcing his candidacy, Brooks said he did so with the realization "that public office is a sacred trust."

"There are, no doubt, some aspirants to office who look upon an election as a form of popularity contest or an opportunity to gain a position where influence may be swayed for personal ambition and self betterment," he said.

"Patently, such motives for seeking public office are indefensible and undermine the foundations of good government. I believe that public office should be sought because it presents an opportunity for public service; an opportunity to become an organic part of present day government."

"The House of Delegates presents what may be termed, the first rung on the political ladder. There are many great political offices in this state, filled by experienced and able men. The office of membership in the House of Delegates has served as an apprenticeship for most of them. None the less, it is a very important job as the candidates who fill such positions formulate the laws which govern the people of this state. They should have a knowledge of the people at the "grass roots" level. They should be able to assume the role of a neighbor representing the interests of his neighbors for the common good."

"I feel that the House of Delegates is an office which should be filled by a man who can tackle the many issues with vigor, industry and enthusiasm."

Active In Community
"Having been born in this county 38 years ago and reared and educated among its people and in its schools, I feel that I am not alien to the needs and desires of the splendid people of Cumberland, $70.57; District 24 this county, I am a graduate of Eckhart, $400.46; District 26 Allegany High School and attended Catherman's Business School, and have endeavored to take an active part in the civic life of this county."

"I have been employed in the accounting department with the C & P railroad and covered this area as a salesman for the Tri-State Paper Company."

"These positions have enabled me to appreciate the stability of character of the citizens of this community. I feel that the experience which I have gained during the four years which I have spent as a constable-at-large for Allegany County has given me a first hand opportunity to learn much about the judicial machinery which is a component part of our governmental system and if elected I pledge myself to devote my time in studying the many other ramifications of the science of government."

"I further pledge myself to view all issues with fairness and impartiality without discrimination and free from prejudices. I trust that the voters will give me this opportunity to serve them and if nominated in the Republican primaries and elected I will dedicate my energies and integrity toward justifying their confidence."

Advanced First Aid Course To Be Offered
An advanced first aid course will open Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at Kingsley Methodist Church, W. Elmo Channell, instructor, said persons desiring to take the course must have a standard Red Cross certificate.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Essie (Dean) Hoesy, and two daughters, Mrs. Viola Fox, (Continued on Page 18)

HAROLD D. BROOKS

H. D. Brooks Seeks Place On GOP Slate

Harold D. Brooks, former constable-at-large and operator of the Tri-State Detective Agency for 14 years, yesterday announced he is a candidate for the House of Delegates subject to the Republican primary in May.

Brooks, who resides in LaVale, is married to the former Phyllis E. Dayton of Westernport. They have two children.

A member of Centre Street Methodist Church, Brooks is also active in fraternal circles. He is a member of BPO Elks Lodge 63, Cumberland Aerie 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Ohio Lodge 131, AFAAM, Salem Chapter 18 Royal Arch Masons, Antioch Commandery 6 Knights Templar, Ali Ghan Shrine, South Cumberland Business Men's Association, and is a past president of the Cumberland Optimist Club.

He also held membership in the Young Republican Club and South End Republican Club during their existence.

In announcing his candidacy, Brooks said he did so with the realization "that public office is a sacred trust."

"There are, no doubt, some aspirants to office who look upon an election as a form of popularity contest or an opportunity to gain a position where influence may be swayed for personal ambition and self betterment," he said.

County Near Final Surplus Food Action

Distribution Plan, Food Available Aired With State Official

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners moved a step nearer adoption of a surplus food distribution program today after receiving a report on a discussion with a state official in charge of the program.

Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson and Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, met yesterday with William Brugger, supervisor of the surplus food programs for the State Department of Budget and Procurement. They inquired what foods are available and the procedure to be followed to adopt a program for Allegany County.

Items Available
Corn meal, dried milk, cheese, flour and rice are the only items available.

Getty said that certification of eligible persons is one of the first requirements. The county board would be responsible for the distribution program and costs involved.

Commissioner Wilkinson made a motion to adopt the program but Commissioner William A. Wilson said it would be best to set up a plan to operate before formally entering into the program.

Commissioner James Orr suggested that since Commissioner Wilkinson had taken it upon himself to go to Baltimore to check into the surplus food situation, that he (Wilkinson) should make the arrangements.

Up To Board
Wilkinson countered with the assertion that after next December he would not be in office and the responsibility for the food distribution is that of the entire board.

Wilkinson and Orr had previously engaged in a heated verbal battle about Wilkinson's trip to Baltimore. Wilkinson told Orr that when he went to Baltimore he didn't go "to play" but was interested in obtaining food for the needy of the county.

At one point Orr told Wilkinson not to engage in personalities. Wilkinson replied: "You don't tell me what to do."

Removal Of Snow Costly

The County Roads Department spent $25,500.59 in January for its maintenance program, according to a report submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners today by J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor.

Snow removal was the major item in the report with labor, materials and equipment accounting for $15,286.08.

Of the grand total of $25,500.59, a sum of $20,669.99 went for labor, $1,532.75 for materials and $3,298.15 for equipment.

The district breakdown is as follows: District 1 Orleans, $277.62; District 2 Oldtown, $1,218.83 including $713.06 on Lower Town Creek Road; District 3 Flintstone, $1,536.35; District 5 Wills Creek-Cumberland, $294.49; District 7 Rawlings, $222.33; District 8 Westernport, $186.49; District 12 East Frostburg, $42.56; District 13 Mt. Savage, $434.45; District 15 East Lonaconing, $302.29.

District 16 North Branch, $738.46; District 17, Vale Summit, $80.32; District 18 Ocean, $11.74; District 20 Ellerslie, $113.32; District 22 Union-Cumberland, $198.20; District 23 Decatur-Cumberland, $70.57; District 24 this county, I am a graduate of Eckhart, $400.46; District 26 Allegany High School and attended Catherman's Business School, and have endeavored to take an active part in the civic life of this county."

Funds Available For Addition

Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson has received a letter from Dr. Perry Prather, director of the State Department of Health (that federal funds are available on a matching basis for an addition to the Allegany County Infirmary).

Wilkinson conferred with Dr. Prather in Baltimore yesterday, but the letter was in reply to a communication of last month.

Dr. Prather said the federal funds could be used to construct and equip a nursing home unit. The state agency has asked for $100,000 in state funds to cover one-third of the costs of any program adopted.

No other county unit has applied for these funds. Dr. Prather said. Whether or not the $100,000 will be available from the state funds requested will not be known until after the legislature adjourns, Dr. Prather added.

Wilkinson said the county infirmary needs additional facilities for patients at the infirmary.

Did you ever wonder how the playoff money is divided in the National Basketball Association?

This year clubs sharing in the pool will divide a $75,000 million—up $25,000 from previous seasons.

Unlike baseball, the money is in the bank before the season begins. The teams know exactly how much is coming for every achievement in the regular season and in the playoffs.

As the players see it, that's much better than the baseball pennant winners' and first-division teams' dependence upon World Series receipts.

As in baseball, the NBA's individual shares are determined by team vote on the number of cuts. The base is 11 shares—ten players and the coach.

Step by step, here is the picture:

The first-place team in each division gets $4,000. Second-place teams get $1,500 each and third-place clubs $1,000 each.

Teams in the preliminary play-off—second vs. third place (best-of-three series)—each get $3,500.

Winners in the divisional semi-finals—survivors of the prelims—each get $7,000 for the best-of-seven series.

In the championship—inter-division (best-of-seven series)—the winner gets $12,000 and the loser $7,000.

In addition, the team with the best percentage standing at the close of the regular season gets $1,000.

Sports Keg Residue

Cumberland and Lonaconing basketball fans will have an opportunity of taking in the University of Maryland's first full-scale scrimmage of the spring-football training session Saturday at College Park.

Roy Lester, assistant coach of the Terps, said the scrimmage which will be staged under actual game conditions, is slated for 2 p. m.

Tommy Mont's team opened drills last Saturday and not too much will be known about the progress the squad is making until later this week.

Lester reported that plans to switch Cumberland's Rod Breedlove to center have been temporarily abandoned, pending the experience of Vic Schwartz in the pivot post.

The graduation of Cumberland's Gene Alderton and Frederick Wilbur Main leaves a big gap in the middle but Terp coaches are hopeful that Schwartz can fill the bill.

If he does, that will leave Breedlove free to roam as line backer on defense and guard on offense, a spot on which he gained first-team recognition on the All-Atlantic Conference club and All-America honorable mention as a sophomore last season.

Schwartz played guard last fall behind Breedlove. Incidentally, Cumberland's Carl Brown, a guard on the 1957 freshman team, is also being changed to center for the spring practice.

Big delegations from Cumberland and Coney will be going to College Park to see the Fort Hill High Sentinels and Valley Black Knights in state tournament action at Cole Field House, beginning Friday evening.

Two Cumberland quintets finished in the top ten of The Washington Post and Times Herald's final schoolboy cage ratings. LaSalle's once-beaten Explorers being fifth and Fort Hill, which handed LaSalle its lone defeat, ranking sixth.

Montgomery Blair, which will meet Fort Hill in the Class A finals Saturday, providing both teams win Friday, wound up first with a 20-0 record.

Cardozo (18-3) is second, Carroll (24-2) third and Wakefield (19-2) fourth.

Piedmont is ranked 19th, but conspicuous by their absence from the top 25 are the Valley Knights.

The Coney cagers, we feel, could hold their own with just about any team in the select group.

Among 5,434 teams entered in the American Bowling Congress tournament beginning March 29 at Syracuse is one from Saudi Arabia.

It's composed of American Oil Company workers, who will compete during their vacations.

Other teams come from 39 states, the District of Columbia, Canada and Alaska.

Houston golf fans chipped in $500 when Paul Harney came down with appendicitis just before the tournament there.

He also was issued the first invitation to the 1959 event.

NCAA Play Opens Tonight On Three Fronts

Terps Meet Boston Five, WVU Plays Manhattan

By FRED DE LUCA

NEW YORK (INS)—West Virginia, top-ranked and favored to wind up in the main event, mixes with the prelim boys tonight when the NCAA's mammoth National Collegiate Basketball Tournament gets under way on three different battlegrounds.

The Mountaineers, No. 1 team in the nation and champions of the Southern Conference, launch their title bid against Manhattan College in part of a first round Eastern regional triple-header at New York's Madison Square Garden.

First round action begins in New York, Evanston, Ill., and Stillwater, Okla., even before the 24-team field has been completed.

Maryland Meets Boston

The next-to-last berth was filled last night when California broke a Pacific Coast deadlock by beating Oregon State, 57 to 45, at Eugene, Ore., and tonight Arkansas battles Southern Methodist at neutral Shreveport, La., in a playoff for the Southwest Conference bid.

West Virginia (26-1) is heavily favored to get by Manhattan College (15-8) and enter the second round at Charlotte, N. C. on Friday night.

The Garden triple-header begins with a game between Ivy League champion Dartmouth and Yankee Conference representative Connecticut. The program concludes with a game between Atlantic Coast Conference champion Maryland and Boston College, an at-large entry.

The Terps ousted North Carolina, last year's NCAA titlist, in the ACC's qualifying playoff. Maryland is the ninth-ranked team in the final International News Service standings.

(Tonight's program starts at 6 o'clock. West Virginia plays at 7:45 and Maryland at 10 p. m.)

Notre Dame Plays Miami

In the Midwest regionals at Evanston, seventh-ranked Notre Dame (at-large) plays Miami of Ohio, the Mid-American champion, and Tennessee Tech, the Ohio Valley kingpin, takes on Pitt, another at-large delegate.

Loyola of New Orleans (at-large) and Oklahoma State (at-large) tangle at Stillwater in the Midwest regional opener.

The opening round of the Far West regionals is scheduled to take place at Berkeley, Calif. on Wednesday night, with Skyline champion Wyoming playing Seattle (at-large) and Idaho State, the Rocky Mountain kings, playing Arizona State of Tempe, the Border Conference titlist.

Seattle's Elgin Baylor scored 27 points as his team concluded the regular season last night with an 80-to-74 win over NIT-bound Bradley.

The All-America lost ground in his duel with fellow All-America ace Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati for national scoring honors. Robertson has a 34.54 scoring average and Baylor's dipped to 33.66 last night.

The scoring race continues in the NCAA's tourney as Cincinnati will represent the Missouri Valley Conference and will play Big Eight champion Kansas State Friday night at Lawrence, Kas.

It was the sixth loss in 26 games for the Braves, who defend their National Invitation crown at Madison Square Garden this week. The Braves were led by Bobby Mason who tallied 18 points.

In another game played last night, Iowa State beat Missouri, 63 to 59 in overtime.

Dates Changed For 'Y' Event

A change in dates for the YMCA-Jaycee basketball tournament was announced today by Jim Fortner, director.

The new dates are March 24 to 27 and March 31 to April 3. The tourney originally was set to open on March 17.

Fortner said the change was made due to a conflict with games in the City Recreation League. Teams of the latter circuit will compete in the tourney.

The deadline date for entries in the tourney has been extended from March 13 to March 20 at 7 p. m.

Moore Reported LaSalle Bound

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dudley Moore, who is said to be at odds with Duquesne University over its basketball policies, today was reliably reported the next man to succeed Jim Pollard at LaSalle College.

The announcement of Moore's appointment is expected within a day or so.

Pollard resigned the LaSalle job yesterday after three seasons—his first in basketball coaching. He said he was "not satisfied" with the results — a 48-28 record — over that period, including a 16-9 slate this season.

The Yale-Harvard basketball rivalry started in 1901.

ALL WRAPPED UP—Ever wonder where New York Yankee slugger Mickey Mantle gets most of his power? Well, here is a good illustration as Mickey twists all the way around in missing pitch during yesterday's exhibition game against Boston Red Sox. Looks like Mantle put everything into that swing. He hit next pitch for a single. The Red Sox won, 4-5.

Winless Yankees Beaten By Bosox; Phillies Erupt

By HOWARD SIGMUND

International News Service Writer

Casey Stengel, a man of many words and much action, has let the world know that his biggest problem this spring is to cut down his talent-heavy New York Yankee squad.

The old professor may be wrong. If things keep going the way they are, Stengel won't have too much trouble cutting down his roster.

When Stengel's winless Bombers were downed, 8 to 5, by the Boston Red Sox yesterday, Casey flipped, "Maybe I better stop telling everybody how good we are."

It was the third straight loss of the grapefruit exhibition season for the American League champions, and Stengel could offer no sour grapes even though his lineup was dominated by "irregulars."

Johnson Hitless

The Bosox showed up without ankle-troubled Ted Williams, Jim Piersall and Frank Malzone, but they managed to rap four Yankee hurlers for 13 hits. The big puke was a bases-loaded triple by Jackie Jensen in a four-run fifth inning off Art Diltmar.

Mickey Mantle played six innings and got two hits, one a bunt single. Deron Johnson, the 19-year-old phenom who crashed two mighty doubles on Sunday, was given a rough time by the Bosox.

Johnson went hitless in five trips, striking out in his first three times at bat.

The Los Angeles Dodgers scored four runs in the eighth inning to beat the world champion Milwaukee Braves, 7 to 5, in a Miami night game. This caused manager Fred Haney hardly any panic.

Haney isn't even worried about the club's only remaining hold-out — Lew Burdette, the World Series pitching hero.

"He'll be in camp soon to sign and begin to work," the manager said cheerfully. "He just doesn't like hard work and calisthenics."

Phillies Erupt

The spring's biggest explosion occurred at Clearwater, Fla. The Philadelphia Phillies erupted for 11 runs in the seventh inning as they beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 18 to 2.

Rookie Cardinal hurlers absorbed the punishment as 14 Phillies went to bat and played merry-go-round on the bases on six singles, four walks and two errors.

Frostburg's Title Tilt On Tap Tonight

The championship of the Frostburg Church Basketball League will be decided tonight when Dickerson and Wesley lays its unblemished record on the line against Congregational. The contest will be played on the Beall High floor, starting at 8 o'clock.

D&W stretched its winning streak to 17 games by eliminating Frostburg Methodist, 51 to 29, last night. In the first game of the semi-final doubleheader Congregational defeated St. Michael's defending champs, 46 to 31.

St. Michael's Catholic and Frostburg Methodist meet for third place in tonight's preliminary, starting at 7 o'clock.

Golbert Carter and Freddie Hall sparked D&W's win last night, the former hooping 19 points and the latter 15. Billy Kennedy had ten for the Methodists who were outgated from the floor, 22 to 11.

Leasure and Duncan slammed in 36 of Congregational's 46 tallies in the opener. Leasure collected 19 points and Duncan garnered 17. Dave Kerch was the leading scorer for St. Michael's with six goals and 13 markers.

More important than the statistics were the timing of his hits. Three times, for example, he drove in ninth-inning runs to beat the New York Yankees. Despite hitting in the lead-off, he was third high on the club in runs batted in with 53.

But his stickwork isn't half the story. Billy's fielding was sensational. He led the league's second baseman with a .887 average, committing only 11 errors and helping the Birds set a league record with 80 errorless games in a season. He had only four miscues through mid-August.

Flying Dutchman

The new Oriole star, by the way reminds me of Herman Koegel, the former all-around star at Allegany High. The Flying Dutchman, as Herman was called, was noted for his football and basketball exploits, but he was also a great baseball player. Herman played center field in Legion ball and later switched to second base where he was a star.

Koegel and the writer played for the Pulaski (Va.) Counts back in 1935 and it was there that he was given credit as the sparkplug that enabled the Counts to win the Tri-County League championship.

Gardner, a small 6-foot, 170-pounder, feels his batting improvement was the result of both playing regularly and eliminating a hitch in his swing during training here last spring. His style improvement was made under the tutelage of Richards and coach Al Vincent.

Billy reported for work at Scottsdale Stadium several days in advance of his scheduled arrival. He'd be happy to repeat his outstanding performance of last season but would be even more pleased with an increased bat mark.

Fort Hill, LaSalle To Bowl For Title

Fort Hill and LaSalle will meet in a six-game rolloff for the Bi-State Interscholastic Bowling League championship Saturday, March 22. The first three games will be rolled on the Diamond alleys, starting at 1 p. m., with the last three set for the Savoy at 3:30.

Fort Hill forced a rolloff by winning the second half in another post-season set yesterday, defeating LaSalle 2 to 0. The two teams had wound up the race in a tie.

Jim Lewis and Mike Holcomb led Fort Hill, the former hitting a 326 set and the latter high game of 173. Tim Felten's 282 was LaSalle's best set.

Southern Bar Wins

Southern Bar won two out of three games from Green's Chevrolet in an Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League match last night. Betty England led the winners with 18 points and Jo Ann Duckworth paced Green's with 19.

Gardner's Infield Work Reminiscent Of Koegel

This is another in a series of spring training camp stories by Norm Gerde, former local baseball star and minor league manager, who is covering major league teams working out in the Far West. Gerde now resides in Lake Tahoe, Nev., where he is employed by Harrah's Club.

By NORM GERDEMAN

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — A castoff picked up by manager Paul Richards when he was with the Chicago White Sox has become the American League's all-star second baseman, and history could repeat in the person of Baltimore's Billy Gardner.

Nellie Fox, unquestionably the league's premier second sacker, has maintained his position since Richards moved to the Orioles. Paul got him from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Gardner, an also-ran for the New York Giants, was waived out of the National League in 1956 and into the welcome arms of the Orioles. Billy had only a .262 batting average last year, but it was the biggest .262 in baseball.

Gets Timely Hits

The quiet 30-year-old from New London, Conn., upped his average 31 points from 1956 and set modern Oriole records for most games in a season (154), most at-bats (644), most hits (169), and most doubles (36).

More important than the statistics were the timing of his hits. Three times, for example, he drove in ninth-inning runs to beat the New York Yankees. Despite hitting in the lead-off, he was third high on the club in runs batted in with 53.

But his stickwork isn't half the story. Billy's fielding was sensational. He led the league's second baseman with a .887 average, committing only 11 errors and helping the Birds set a league record with 80 errorless games in a season. He had only four miscues through mid-August.

DiBiase Wins Split Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony DiBiase, the college student who fights like a dead end kid, beat Peter Schmidt for Uncle Sam's benefit. Now he wants to do it again for Tony DiBiase's bank account.

"This one takes care of my income taxes," said 22-year-old Tony, a geology student at New York University after he won a disputed split decision over the Romanian-born Schmidt at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night, in a telecast 10-rounder.

"I'll be glad to take him on again next month," said Tony when the promoters asked him if he would fight a return bout. "I could use the cash for some Easter shopping."

"Anytime, any place," said Schmidt. "I'm sure I had the edge on him but I just can't seem to get a break on the scoring lately."

A big majority of the ringside critics had Schmidt ahead, all by very close scores. It was that kind of a fight. The pendulum swung with each round.

Referee Davey Feld (54-1) and Judge Mike Davidowitch (6-4) each had DiBiase ahead. Judge Joe Eppy cast his vote for Schmidt, 6-4. The AP card had DiBiase in front, 6-4.

West Virginia Voted Nation's No. 1 Team For '58

Awarded 89 First-Place Ballots For Last AP Poll

By WILL GRIMSLEY
The Associated Press

West Virginia, a team of towering mountain boys with deadly shooting eyes, is the nation's No. 1 college basketball team for the 1957-58 season.

Coches Fred Schaus' squad from Morgantown, W. Va., captured top honors today in the final Associated Press poll, making an 11th-hour spurt to the position it held through much of the campaign.

Cincinnati finished second and Kansas State fell from first to third after being beaten by Nebraska and Kansas during the final week. San Francisco placed fourth and Temple fifth, followed by Maryland, Kansas, Notre Dame, Kentucky and Duke.

The West Virginians grabbed 89 of the first-place votes of sports writers and broadcasters who participated in the balloting. Cincinnati collected the second largest number, 37.

Points are awarded on the basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, etc. West Virginia had 1,400 points compared with 1,214 for Cincinnati.

Kansas State had 981 points but only two first-place nominations.

A team of rugged individualists who have no set plays but "do just what comes naturally," West Virginia rolled up a season record of 26 victories and one defeat, counting games in the Southern Conference Tournament it won for the fourth straight time.

Terps Finish Sixth

The only setback came at the hands of Duke, 72-68, in Durham, N.C., Jan. 27. The mountaineers have a 12-string string as they face Manhattan at Madison Square Garden tonight in one of the preliminary NCAA Tournament playoffs.

The team's ace shot is Jerry West, a six-foot-three sophomore who is averaging 18.1 points a game.

Maryland, with a 20-6 record, broke into the first 10 by winning the tough Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament.

The final standings with first-place votes in parenthesis:

FIRST TEN
1. West Virginia (89)	1,400
2. Cincinnati (37)	1,214
3. Kansas State (2)	981
4. San Francisco (2)	981
5. Temple (9)	910
6. Maryland (8)	632
7. Kansas (1)	501
8. Notre Dame (5)	479
9. Kentucky (1)	358
10. Duke	350

South Claims Scoring Crown For Pat Boyer

South Hagerstown High School today claimed the scoring championship of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League for its sharp-shooting cage star, Pat Boyer.

Reports last week had Allegany High's Gary Shook nosing out Boyer by one point, 180 to 179, but the Rebels say that their ace tallied 181 markers during the ten-game league campaign.

Dick Kelly, Hagerstown Daily Mail sports editor, reported today that he checked the Rebels' scorebook for the season upon request of coach Nick Scallion and found a discrepancy in the opening game with North when Boyer should have been credited with 10 points instead of eight.

The new total gives Boyer 181 points to Shook's 180.

Three Still Tied As New Orleans Hits Final Rounds

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The final 36 holes of the $20,000 New Orleans Open got under way today with Ken Venturi, Bill Casper and Walter Burkemo the men to beat.

Venturi scrambled for a 71 yesterday after carding an opening 68. He fell into a tie with Burkemo, one-time PGA champion from Franklin Hills, Mich., and Casper, the long hitter from Apple Valley, Calif.

Burkemo came in with a 4-under-par 68 after posting 71 in the first round. Casper tacked a 70 onto his first-round 69.

The 36-hole finals today were necessitated because of the heavy rains that postponed the tournament's opening until Sunday. PGA Tournament Director Harvey Raynor said the event had to be completed today to allow the touring pros to move on to Pensacola, Fla., where a $15,000 tournament opens Thursday.

Big Bill Ray of Wayne, Mich., carded the day's best round with a 67 while Mike Krak, Morgantown, W. Va., had a 68.

Gene Littler, Singing Hills, Calif., tied with Venturi and Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex., for the first-round lead, took a 78, dropping in with 72 to tie Nary, Krak and Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., for a spot behind the three leaders.

Planted 'Mikes' Latest Of Lane's 'Brainstorms'

By JOHN CLARY
The Associated Press

Frank Lane, Cleveland Indians general manager, has never been one to run out of ideas.

He's come up with plenty of them at Tucson, Ariz. Manager Bobby Bragan has been given three full-time coaches, five former major league stars as "instructors" and a former Olympic track star.

It's hard to see where a team can go wrong with men like Mel Harder handling pitchers, and Eddie Stanky and Red Kress handling general instructional duties. These are the full-time aides.

Visiting pros include Tris Speaker, with courses in hitting and fielding. Clyde McCullough on catching. Jo-Jo White on bunting and Hoot Evers and Bob Kennedy on hitting.

Ex-Olympian Harrison Dillard teaches the boys how to get up speed and maintain it.

In between these classes, Lane offers a few suggestions for general consumption.

The latest is the planting of microphones behind home plate and the first and third base coaching lines so the fans can listen in on confabs, rhubarbs and general banter.

Earthy language? Lane concedes this would be a problem but he also sees the players' wives and children as a possible deterrent.

The Cleveland GM feels that this gimmick would "return the game to the fans," who no longer cast All-Star ballots.

ACC Tutors Pushing Plans For NIT Play

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Atlantic Coast Conference basketball coaches are not giving up their campaign to have the ACC sanction participation in the National Invitation Tournament.

Press Maravich of Clemson, new vice president of the ACC Coaches Association explained it thusly:

"Maryland will represent us in the NCAA tournament and, we feel sure, do a good job. But Duke and North Carolina, two other good ball clubs, would have been fine representatives in the NIT—had they had the chance to accept an invitation.

"We respect the individual school's wishes. We don't say that a team should go to the NIT, all we want is for the conference to make it possible under the rules for them, to accept a bid if they get one."

The coaches have voted to recommend that the basketball committee foster a proposal at the spring conference meeting in May to allow a member to compete in the NIT. A similar move got nowhere at the December meeting.

The committee said it felt the best interests of the conference would be served by affiliation with only one tournament—the NCAA.

Maravich pointed to Wake Forest a year ago as a fine team, one deserving of a chance to go on to NIT play after giving North Carolina four hard battles during the season.

Over the last half of the season the ACC had four of the nation's top 20 teams. The balance of the league was reflected by the scores of the recent Raleigh tournament.

The first game of the seven played and the last were settled by 12-point margins. In each case the winner, North Carolina and Maryland, had to come from far behind to win.

Of the five other games, only Duke's 51-44 conquest of Wake Forest, was decided by more than six points.

Malzone Hits Zenith After Nine Seasons

SARASOTA, Fla. (INS)—The career of Frank Malzone is one big boost for the much-maligned adage, "The best things in life are free."

For in this age of the bonus players, the Boston Red Sox have a star third baseman who signed into the organization for a straight $175-a-month salary.

This was back in 1948, but it is still difficult to believe that Malzone, who hit a neat .292 last year while batting in 103 runs and fielding sensationally, was worth only what he received at the time.

No Tumble From Yanks

He never received a tumble from the New York Yankees, although he played three years of semi-pro ball in his native Bronx. In fact, he paid his own transportation to Yankee Stadium for the workout with the Red Sox which resulted in his signing.

Today, he and Ted Williams are the only two players on the Red Sox squad who are considered "untouchable," as trade material.

Casey Stengel picked Frank as his all-star third baseman last season, he was named sophomore of the year 1957 and he finished seventh in the league Most Valuable Player voting.

It took nine years for Malzone to reach this pinnacle, and his courage and abiding love of the game were tested almost every step up the ladder.

Erratic in Field

Erratic fielding plagued him at the very beginning. He made 30 errors his first year in organized ball with Milford, Md., of the Eastern Shore (Class D) League.

He topped that in 1949, with 43 errors playing for Oneonta in the Class C Canadian-American League.

Significantly, he racked up 303 assists while making those 43 errors, indicating he was willing to try for everything within reach.

He fractured his ankle at the start of the 1950 season after being moved up to Scranton in the Class A Eastern League, came back the next year, slower by several steps and made 34 errors.

Two years in the Army settled Malzone into manhood, and he began to polish his game in Louisville, where he spent two years before getting a shot at the top in 1956.

Refused To Alibi

He opened that year as the Red Sox regular third baseman and 27 games later was back in San Francisco, an apparent failure, hitting only .165 and fielding .931.

Frank refused to alibi this showing, but the Sox soon learned his baby daughter had died suddenly during the winter and he had developed inflamed tendons on both ankles.

Even so, he was given first shot at third last spring only because he had played winter ball and was in better shape than other contenders for the job.

He wound up playing all but one game of the 154-game schedule, although there were times when his hitting early in the season was far below par.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals has won seven National League batting championships. Hans Wagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates won eight.

Moose Cops Opener, Seeks City Hoop Title Tomorrow

The Loyal Order of Moose will be out to nail down the championship of the City Basketball League tomorrow night when it meets the Old Germans in the second game of the best-of-three series. The contest is set for 8:30 p. m. at Fort Hill High School, with Chaney's Transportation and Knights of Columbus meeting in a 7 o'clock preliminary.

Nine straight points in the last two minutes of play cracked a 65-65 deadlock and enabled the Moose to whip the Old Germans in the opener of the title series last night at Fort Hill. After Don Moran put the Old Germans in the 65-65 tie, Fritz Showers sank a foul for the Moose and Donnie Madden tallied a field goal. That conched it for the Moose.

The exciting contest was highlighted by sensational foul shooting. The Brewers sank 27 of 32 chances for a scorching .844 percentage, while the Moose hooped 28 of 38 for .737. The winners outscored the Germans, 24-19, from the floor.

In last night's preliminary game, Forty & Eight Club clobbered Knights of Columbus, 78-44.

Ed Riley slammed in 19 points for the Box Car Society. Jerry Farrell had 13 for the losers.

Wesleyan Wins Tourney Opener

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The undefeated Leathernecks of Western Illinois University, No. 1 seeded entry, throw their caps into the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament tonight a bit concerned because of what happened to the No. 2 seeded team last night.

Coches Slix Morley's Leathernecks (23-0) meet lightly regarded Georgia Teachers (12-15) at 6 p. m.

The Portland (Ore.) pilots, who played the toughest schedule of any of the teams and were seeded No. 2, were eliminated in the opening half of the first round yesterday. Unseeded Cole College of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, beat them 63-61.

Other teams came through on schedule although fifth-ranked West Virginia Wesleyan had to pull a sharp rally late in its game. Wesleyan took Arkansas Tech 81-75.

Milwaukee pitcher Warren Spahn has a 45-15 lifetime record against the Cincinnati Redlegs.

The Cincinnati Royals can finish in a tie for second place in Western Division of the National Basketball Assn., providing they win their final regular game of the season Wednesday night.

The resurgent Royals kept their hopes alive by overwhelming the St. Louis Hawks 122-84 in the only game played last night.

Cincinnati's record now is 32-39, while the second-place Detroit Pistons have completed their regular schedule with a 33-39 mark.

If the Royals can defeat the Lakers at Minneapolis Wednesday, Cincinnati and Detroit would end up tied for second. The teams would then toss a coin to decide which gets the home court advantage in their first round best-of-three series.

The Philadelphia Warriors get a chance to clinch third place in the Eastern Division tonight. A Philadelphia victory over St. Louis of a New York Knickerbocker loss to the Boston Celtics would eliminate the Knicks mathematically.

Do It Yourself Jobs Sometimes Cost More Money

NEW ULM, Minn.—If you don't succeed, don't try again, says Alfred Polta, a reformed do-it-yourself artist.

Polta, preparing to do some shellacking in his home, bumped a lamp off the wall.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem."

Detrick Plans Work Slash

FREDERICK, Md. — Fort Detrick has announced plans to lay off approximately 175 civilian employees. It drew an immediate protest from a Maryland senator and representative in Congress.

Col. Donald G. Grothaus, commanding officer of the Chemical Corps biological warfare laboratories at the nearby installation, said the 175 would be released beginning April 1.

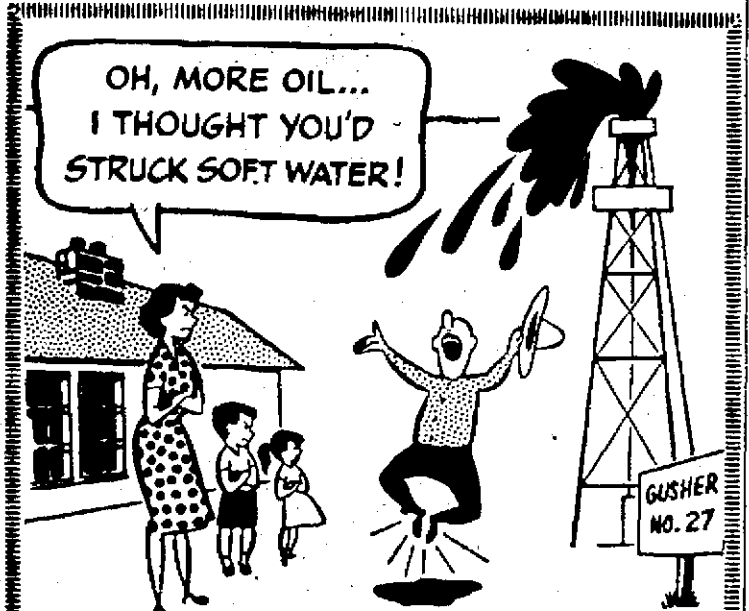

The separation will be carried out in accordance with Civil Service reduction in force regulations, he said, and does not reflect on their work. About 85 per cent will be in administrative and wage board personnel, the colonel said.

Yesterday Sen. Beall and Rep. Hyde, both (R-Md.), protested the move to Secretary of Defense McElroy. Their joint statement said the work being done at Detrick "is of the utmost importance to this country and the world."

"We are told," they said, "there is a grave shortage of scientifically trained personnel and that all manner or programs have been suggested to train more such people and to keep them in government service."

"It is certainly a contradiction of what we have been hearing to now be advised that the government is going to lay off valuable scientists, engineers and technicians. We strongly urge your re-consideration of the proposed reduction force at Fort Detrick."

Fort Detrick is just southwest of Frederick.

Taxes Help

tax collections since 1951-52 far in excess of their property growth. He said this should refute arguments that it works an economic hardship for their area.

Rejects Alternate
Before coming up to the House session, the Ways and Means Committee rejected another alternate plan to the 50 per cent sales tax and 50 per cent income tax rise.

Sponsored by Dels. Hanna (D-Wicomico) and Larmore (R-Wicomico), both of whom finally switched to the governor's plan in the face of heavy local criticism last Friday, it would have boosted the income tax rate from 2 to 3 per cent, added to a 10 per cent surtax on individual income and a 10 per cent surtax on corporate income.

It was voted down in the ways and means committee 26-8 and Larmore and Hanna rejoined those supporting the governor's program.

A Senate-approved plan to raise the income tax from 2 to 3 per cent, apply a 5 per cent surtax, lower the sales tax from the present purchases of 50 cents to those costing 33 cents or more and re-apply it to restaurant meals and soaps and baby oils also has been rejected by the split-up House.

It has failed three times and Gov. McKeldin has indicated that if the Legislature should go to it as a last resort he will veto it, still leaving a tax problem to be settled.

The House was to make a seventh try on the governor's tax program in a session to begin this noon.

Turnbull Files For Return To State Senate

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — State Sen. John Turnbull (D-Balto County) in a surprise move filed for renomination shortly before the midnight deadline last night.

Turnbull, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, had been considered a possible candidate for the U. S. Senate. He had announced he would not try to retain his State Senate seat and was supporting House Majority Leader Gordon Boone (D-Balto County) to succeed him.

Boone later announced as a candidate for the State senatorial nomination, but withdrew a short time later in the interests of "party harmony" and in favor of James A. Pine, who had the blessings of County Executive Michael J. Birmingham, titular Baltimore County Democratic leader.

Friends of Turnbull said he had indicated he might withdraw from the State Senate race before March 15 deadline. They said he had not changed his mind about retiring from his seat until last weekend.

Turnbull, 47, was appointed to the State Senate in 1948 and was elected to a full term in 1954. He was named Senate Majority leader in 1955.

Weight Limits On Highways Are Reduced

BALTIMORE, (AP) — The State Roads Commission today listed 21 sections of Southern Maryland highways where permissible weight limits of trucks have been temporarily reduced.

The SRC said it was taking the action because of damage done by the severity of the past winter. The maximum weight of vehicles using the 21 sections of road in Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys counties has been set at 8,000 pounds per axle. The temporary restriction will run for a period not exceeding 60 days from the time signs are posted notifying the public of the change.

It said the roads would be "seriously damaged or destroyed by reason of rain, snow or other climatic conditions unless the permissible weight of vehicles traveling thereon be reduced."
